

The Door Bell Rang by Pat Hutchins

Here are a few ideas you may want to include in your classroom after sharing the book with your children.

1. Have the children help you prepare the Healthy Banana Oatmeal cookie dough
 - a. Literacy ideas that could be shared
 - i. Let's read the recipe before we begin making the cookie dough. We want to make sure we have all the ingredients before we start.
 - ii. I wonder why some bananas are green and some are yellow.
 - iii. Would you like to create your own cookie recipe? Tell it to me, and I'll write it down. If you like, you can draw a picture of your cookies. We could add it to our 'Cookie Book'.
 - b. Math ideas that could be shared.
 - i. Have the children make cookies out of playdough. Provide them with items that could be used to decorate their cookies. Have them roll a dice to determine how many decorations to place on their cookie.
 - ii. Mighty Minutes Card #7 – 'Hippity, Hoppity, How Many' could be used as a transition as the children move between activities throughout the day.
